

Robert Seaman

Bob has over 44 years of professional experience in civil engineering, land planning, and undergraduate teaching in these areas. He retired from New England College in 2011 (www.nec.edu), during which time he has presented papers at numerous conferences and served on local and national committees associated with housing issues, including the American Society of Civil Engineers (www.ASCE.org.) and PlanNH.org. He brings these experiences to the Mt. Washington Valley with the hope of contributing to making it a more sustainable and vibrant community for all sectors of society.
